Day Ten - How Race Affects Your Health

You may have heard about the wealth gap, but have you heard about the wealth-health gap? According to the NY Times 1619 Project, "racial health disparities have been as foundational as democracy itself." (39:13 minute podcast)

Socioeconomic status and institutional racism lead to disparities across living conditions, limit access to quality health care, and contribute to chronic stress. The factors lead to shorter life spans and higher likelihood of adverse health outcomes for people living in poverty and people of color.

Healthcare costs also make up a significant portion of a household's annual budget, placing additional stress on families that may or may not have insurance and access to quality care. In developing the 2019 ALICE Report, the most significant driver of increases in the Household Survival Budget from 2010 to 2017 was health care costs, including an average 59 percent increase in out-of-pocket costs.
